After being sick all of February, I keep forgetting that we are almost done with March! Spring is already here, feeling like summer at 90°F in AZ. In addition to more art (now available on Zazzle) I have made some headway for my next book. I finally came up with a title and cover. I will be posting it soon. This month I also got back into more useful posts like the free 32-page layout template. I hope it helps any artists or writers to bring their vision to life. I am working on a schedule template, and to-do list. I am also trying to sneak in an Easter Kid's Activity. So check back this week and next for those. Also if you haven't seen out Easter Post from last year, check it out. It will help you cook those eggs and find ways to use them.

Please read what you like and share what you love.
