If this email imports as text only, or you have any issues reading it, please click here November Newsletter

As you may have noticed, I took a six month break from all things Stories by Mom and In the Line Designs. I hadn't worked on any books, illustrations, or any project. But, I am back. I am hoping to start where I left off.

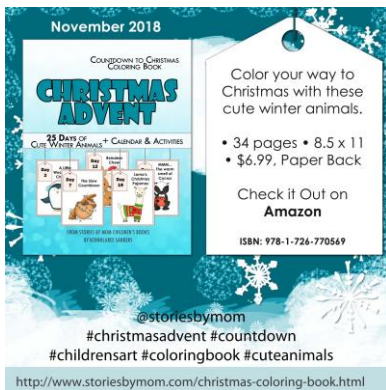

I hope to work on my, very much behind schedule, children's book, Pete and the Night Time Shadows. I also have a few other book ideas in the works. I am also trying to refocus on my illustrations to produce even better art that I can make available to purchase through Zazzle. And I just release my first coloring book.

I hope to continue to provide free activities for kids as well as resources for parents, writers, and illustrators alike. I hope you continue to follow and share and help me keep this train moving forward.

Please read what you like and share what you love.

If you followed me last year, then you may recognize these sweet winter animals. It was part of #illo_advent2017 challenge on Twitter. I really enjoyed drawing them, and thought I would turn them into my first published Coloring Book.

Color your way to Christmas with these cute winter animals. There are a total of 25 unique animals with their own take on the winter holiday. Each day is titled with a humorous play-on-words that is sure to bring a smile. The coloring book also includes a calendar, write-your-own Christmas list, and other activities.
